

Learn 4 languages in one day!

AN AMAZING EXPERIENCE

Learning - the natural cycle

There are four basic ways people perceive and process information. We call it learning styles. In this class you'll discover not only your own learning style, but also how to motivate and engage every single person in a group, in every session - using the 4MAT method.

Cooperation - you and the team

How do you prefer to learn? What you need to maximize your strengths in a learning situation, - for a meeting or in a work situation? Discover how easy you can learn to stretch into a different approach that allows you to communicate with other learning types "in their language"...

Successful communication

Learn to use a simple and successful 4 steps method in both your oral and written communication. With this method you can ensure your message gets through containing all essential elements, such as motivation, content, action and a perspective of use.

The essential question of today

How do I create successful communication where I take personal differences into account?

- Why is successful communication and learning important?

What do you think are extra important for you in relation to communication and learning?

- Learning styles - your preferences, strengths and development potentials

Discover your own personal learning style! Are you primarily the empathetic, analytical, practical or the dynamic type? - And what does it mean?

- Hemispheric Preferences

Are you mostly dominated by your right or left hemisphere? How does it effect the way you perceive and process knowledge? and what does it mean in regards to the way you communicate?

- Learn to speak the 4 languages

We practice how to target communications to each of the four learning types. We focus on what motives each type, how you spot them in your daily life, and how to secure successful communication.

- Team overlay and differences

Take a closer look at how your team is constructed. Define areas of challenges areas of flow. Use the diversity positively and create even better results.

- 4MAT 4-step model - who has responsibility for communication?

The one sending out the message is responsible for the receiver understanding it! With the 4-step model we focus on how to send a messages to a larger group of different learning styles and ensuring that everyone feels meet on their preferences.

- Perspectives

How can you use your new language skills? Where, when and how you integrated the new knowledge in your daily life? In what contexts they will new skills to create value for you, your team and your business? We reflect and create an action plan.

- Evaluation

Thank you - we look forward to seeing you again.
